Quality Control

Lifestyle Cabinets goes through a 5 step process for quality control. All our wood is pre-selected and goes through a visual inspection prior to entering the production area. Once in production, the wood is cut to size and examined for any flaws. Then, each aluminum panel is inspected prior to powder coating and again after. Before assembly starts, all parts are re-inspected again and then assembled. Finally, our QC inspector looks over every detail including weld, powder coating, wood and inserts to ensure there are no flaws in our product. We then crate everything - ensuring there is no damage and the packaging is secure and vital areas are fully covered.

Ordering/ Delivery

Once Lifestyle receives an order form, we will input information into our system and fax an invoice of your order that will need to be signed and faxed back. Please look over the invoice thoroughly to insure no mistakes have been made on our part or your part. Once the invoice is signed, all products will be made as per invoice. No returns or alterations can be made once invoice is in production. Lifestyle will take no responsibility for any mistakes on a signed invoice. If Lifestyle should ship a product that was not on the invoice or is wrong (due to our error) we will re-make and ship at our expense.

All invoices must be paid at time of order. Production will start once payment in full is received.

Lifestyle will inform you of the time frame for custom orders, generally being shipped within 21 to 30 working days.

Damaged claims and replacement parts will ship in 5 working days.

Tips and Help

Always show customers your door sample(s) and have them sign off on door style and wood variation.. Ipe (pronounced e-pay) is a consistent wood, however there are always some variations in natural products. Lifestyle will not take returns for normal variations of wood. We select our wood very carefully to limit the variation on each job. If there is a defect in the wood, we will replace the wood or the door.

Cabinet Construction

Lifestyle cabinets has worked on perfecting this system of cabinetry since 2004. All our cabinets are constructed from powder coated .090 aluminum. All joints are either riveted or welded depending on structural requirements and aesthetics. The floors and backs are a polymer designed for outdoor use and are black in color. All additional hardware is aluminum or stainless steel. Drawers are constructed from polymer to ensure a long lasting drawer system. Ipe (pronounced e-pay) is used for cabinet doors and drawer fronts. Ipe is one of the hardest woods available, for outdoor use it is rated for 50-75 years. Ipe also has the same fire rating as concrete. Lifestyle selects wood used on our cabinets very carefully. When putting an order together we lay out all the wood required for the entire invoice prior to assembling the first part. This ensures a uniform look throughout the project. All parts go through a quality control check and are fully assembled prior to shipping.

Note: All interior cabinet dimensions are 2 inches smaller than the overall outside dimension. Sink bases have a bend at the top of the cabinet for structure reducing the overall width of the top cabinet opening for the sink by another 1 1/2 inches.

Maintenance

Ipe requires some maintenance. We recommend using linseed oil or teak oil on a regular schedule. If cabinets are in direct sunlight for the better part of the day we recommend oiling them every 4 to 6 weeks. If the cabinets are covered and not in any direct sunlight we recommend oiling every 8 to 12 weeks. Every time oiling is done, simply clean the metal insert with a dry rag to remove any built up dirt on the surface.

Cleaning

When cleaning cabinets open the doors and remove any large debris. Use a water hose or pressure washer and spray the interior and exterior of the cabinet well and allow water to drain out the bottom. Drying is usually not necessary as the water will drain from the cabinets. Allow wood to dry for about 2 hours and re-oil the wood.
